If you are right-handed, would you practice writing with your left hand to improve your handwriting? Of course not! Over time, we develop talents that are innate to who we are - we do them naturally, without thinking about it. During this exciting course, you'll learn how to:

- Focus on your strengths, rather than your short-comings, to make meaningful strides toward being a stronger contributor and interacting more effectively on your team.
- Tap into the talents that define your natural strengths and use them to complement your teammates' strengths.
- Become a more valuable team player by doing what you already do best.
