SUBJECT: TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT REPORT 2010–2011

Attached is the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Report 2010–2011. This report reflects an assessment of the level of parental involvement coded in Chancery in relation to the feedback gathered on the 2010–2011 Parent Involvement Survey. The percentage of the responses received from the survey and the percentages of parental involvement in Chancery were included for each campus. The household demographic data were noted where available. Finally, this report provided a school office and district-level summation of student participation and feedback in Chancery and on the 2010–2011 survey.

Some of the highlights are as follows:

- Hispanic students (124,405) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide. They also had an 83 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery.
- The 2010–2011 Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was completed by 41,460 parents reflecting 21 percent of all Title I students enrolled.
- A review of the Chancery categories showed 81 percent of parents were identified in Chancery as having received a copy of the parent involvement policy or parent/school compact. The category of “parent conferences” showed 52 percent of parents participated and 19 percent participated in activities coded as “education.” The category of “family literacy” showed a participation rate of 15 percent and the parent literacy participation rate was 10 percent. The rate of parent participation in category of “planning” 11 percent, while the volunteerism participation rate was recorded at 13 percent.
- Schools continue to be consistent in establishing compacts between themselves and the parents of their students. Districtwide, 85 percent of parents surveyed responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 2 “The school has provided me a copy of the parent involvement policy” and Question 3: “The school provided me a copy of the parent/school compact” (83 percent).

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT 2010–2011

Program Description

The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and reach, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and state academic assessments. The Title I, Part A program (Part A-Improving Basic Programs Operated By Local Educational Agencies) was authorized by the ESEA and reauthorized by the NCLB Act of 2001.

Under this act, provisions to engage parents in the education process were made. The program's goal is to increase the presence of parents involved by providing funding and opportunities for parents of Title I, Part A students on either a schoolwide or targeted assistance campus. These provisions stress shared accountability between schools and parents for high student achievement. They include: expanded public school choice, a broader range of supplemental educational services for eligible children in low-performing schools, local development of parental involvement plans with sufficient flexibility to address local needs, and building parents' capacity for using effective practices to improve their own children's academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program affords parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Guide (Department of External Funding, 2009c), parents must be involved in the decisions associated with impacting their children's academic success. For the purpose of identifying how parents were involved, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2010–2011 Title I coding procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these types (Department of External Funding, 2010a).

Federal Criteria for Identifying Title I, Part A Campuses

Title I, Part A regulations require that one percent of the total school Title I allocation be set aside for parental involvement activities. Schools are required to provide parents with a written parental involvement policy, which must be included in the district's plans. Additionally, schools must collaborate with parents in an effort to build capacity while also integrating other state and federally funded educational programs, conducting annual evaluations, and designing new strategies that impact parents and students (Department of External Funding, 2010b).

Purpose of the Evaluation Report

The purpose of this report was to assess the level of parental involvement coded in Chancery in relation to the feedback gathered on the 2010–2011 Parent Involvement Survey. The percentage of the responses received from the survey and the percentages of parental involvement recorded in Chancery were included for each campus. The household demographic data were noted where available. Finally, this report provided school office and district-level summations of students' parent participation in Chancery and responses from the 2010–2011 survey.

Key Findings

1. What were the demographic characteristics of students whose parents were coded in Chancery and parents who responded to the Title I Parent Involvement Survey?
- Hispanic students (124,405) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide. They also had an 83.4 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery.

- White students had the third largest enrollment of Title I students (11,629), and the second highest parent involvement participation rate of 95 percent coded in Chancery, with American Indian students having the highest parental involvement participation rate (99 percent).
 - The 2010–2011 Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was completed by 41,460 parents reflecting 21 percent of all Title I students enrolled.
 - Representing 62 percent of the 41,460 surveys returned, the largest ethnic group responding to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was Hispanic (25,557). Women represented 73 percent of all persons responding to the survey. The category of White women was the highest percentage of persons responding (80 percent) by gender.
 - White respondents represented the highest percentage (83 percent) of households who spoke English, while Hispanic respondents had the highest percentage (67 percent) of households indicating that English was not spoken at home.
2. How did the parent involvement information in Chancery compare to the parents’ perceptions as expressed on the 2010–2011 Title I Parent Involvement Survey?
- A review of the Chancery categories showed 81 percent of parents were identified in Chancery as having received a copy of the parent involvement policy or parent/school compact. The category of “parent conferences” showed 52 percent of parents participated and 19 percent participated in activities coded as “education.” The category of “family literacy” showed a participation rate of 15 percent and the parent literacy participation rate was 10 percent. The rate of parent participation in category of “planning” 11 percent, while the volunteerism participation rate was recorded at 13 percent.
 - Schools continue to be consistent in establishing compacts between themselves and the parents of their students. Districtwide, 85 percent of parents surveyed responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 2 “The school has provided me a copy of the parent involvement policy” and Question 3: “The school provided me a copy of the parent/school compact” (83 percent).
 - When compared to last year, more parents responded to the parent survey, while Chancery data reflects improved parent participation rates throughout the 2010–2011 school year.

Recommendations

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement components, schools must provide opportunities for parents to engage in regular, two-way, and meaningful communication involving student academic learning and school activities. Schools are also required to develop strategies to increase parental involvement (U.S. Department of Education, 2009). In line with the federal law, the following recommendations are suggested.

1. Parent involvement activities, particularly campus events that parents are encouraged to attend, should be stressed at campuses identified with low participation rates in Chancery. Schools should place more emphasis on the coding of students’ whose parents participated in these activities in Chancery. These events could include open house and parent-teacher organization meetings.
2. Successful plans and activities that can be replicated to raise the levels of parent involvement need to be identified.

TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT 2010–2011

INTRODUCTION

Program History

After assessing the educational opportunities of those children who were considered economically deprived, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed legislation in 1965 that would give underprivileged students supplemental support with their educational needs. The Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) gave birth to Title I, Part A as we know it today. Today, as the largest federal block program supporting elementary and secondary education, the purpose of this program is to:

provide financial assistance...to local educational agencies serving areas with concentrations of children from low-income families; and to expand and improve their educational programs by various means...which contribute particularly to meeting the special educational needs of educationally deprived children (PL 89-10, Section 201).

In 1965, ESEA was put into law, which included Title I, and has had several reauthorizations. Initial changes attempted to close the gap of poverty, while recent changes have been made to create more rigorous standards of accountability across all states (Mizelle and Irvin, 2000). In 2001, ESEA was again reauthorized and renamed No Child Left Behind (NCLB). The reauthorization brought the most sweeping changes since the implementation of ESEA. According to the National School Board Association (2000), these changes were put into effect "...to increase the role of parents in program design, and to ensure that Title I funds were used to supplement (not replace) local funds." Included in those changes were detailed provisions that required every Title I school to set aside one percent of their per pupil allocation for parental involvement:

A local educational agency may receive funds under this part only if such agency implements programs, activities, and procedures for the involvement of parents in programs assisted under this part consistent with this section. Such programs, activities, and procedures shall be planned and implemented with meaningful consultation with parents of participating children. (PL 107-110, Section 1118 (a)(1)).

In addition to the requirements for schools to serve parents, districts are required to formulate and assess their parental involvement policy within their Title I district plan (Department of External Funding, 2008c). The policy must state that parents have been given an opportunity to participate in their children's education through signed compacts, conferencing, education opportunities, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The district parent involvement supervisor ensures the district remains in compliance with the provisions expressed in the law.

Program Description

The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and reach, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and state academic assessments. The Title I, Part A program (Part A-Improving Basic Programs Operated By Local Educational Agencies) was authorized by the ESEA and reauthorized by the NCLB Act of 2001.

Under this act, provisions were made to engage parents in the education process. The program's goal is to increase the presence of parents involved by providing funding and opportunities for parents of Title I, Part A students on either a schoolwide or targeted assistance campus. These provisions stress shared accountability between schools and parents for high student achievement. They include: expanded public school choice, a broader range of supplemental educational services for eligible children in low-performing schools, local development of parental involvement plans with sufficient flexibility to address local needs, and building parents' capacity for using effective practices to improve their own children's academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program affords parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Guide (Department of External Funding, 2010c), parents must be involved in the decisions associated with impacting their children's academic success. For the purpose of identifying how parents were involved, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2009–2010 Title I coding procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these types (Department of External Funding, 2010a).

The 2010–2011 Title I implementation guide identified the following definitions:

Individual Compact – A contract that lists the responsibilities of Title I Targeted Assisted School parents, staff and students for improved student achievement.

Schoolwide Compact – A contract that lists the responsibilities of Title I Schoolwide School parents, staff and students for improved student achievement.

Parent Conference – A one-on-one meeting between the parent and classroom teacher that may include others such as the assistant principal, counselor, or another stakeholder.

Parent Education – Classes or topics covering parenting skills and actions that the parent can use to assist their child(ren) to become successful mastering the state's challenging academic standards and assessments.

Family Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent (or other family member) and child(ren) to become literate in reading and computer skills.

Parent Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent (or other family member) become literate and child(ren) to become literate in reading, computer skills, and/or job skills (i.e. GED, ESL, and Computer Literacy Classes).

Planning – An opportunity for parents to meet and plan activities that will increase parental involvement at the local campus, as well as an opportunity for parents to have input about how the Title I, Part A funds are used at the local campus.

Parent Volunteer – Parents at the local campus involved in capacity building activities that help foster an environment conducive for learning.

In determining the level of responsibility shared between the school and the parent for the child's education, a compact is generated where all parties are asked to sign. This compact must: be developed jointly, outline the responsibilities of each stakeholder, describe the school's responsibility in guiding instruction and the parent's role in supporting the learning process, and detail the importance of communication between the parents and the school (Department of External Funding, 2010c).

Federal Criteria for Identifying Title I, Part A Campuses

Title I, Part A regulations require that one percent of the total school Title I allocation be set aside for parental involvement activities. Schools are required to provide parents with a written parental involvement policy, which must be included in the district's plans. Additionally, schools must collaborate with parents in an effort to build capacity while also integrating other state and federally funded educational programs, conducting annual evaluations, and designing new strategies that impact parents and students (Department of External Funding, 2010b).

Purpose of the Evaluation Report

The purpose of this report was to assess the level of parental involvement coded in Chancery in relation to the feedback gathered on the 2010–2011 Parent Involvement Survey. The percentage of the responses received from the survey and the percentages of parental involvement recorded in Chancery were included for each campus. The household demographic data were noted where available. Finally, this report provided school office and district-level summations of students' parent participation in Chancery and responses from the 2010–2011 survey.

1. What were the demographic characteristics of students whose parents were coded in Chancery and parents who responded to the Title I Parent Involvement Survey?
2. How did the parent involvement information in Chancery compare to parents' perceptions as expressed on the 2010–2011 Title I Parent Involvement Survey?

MethodsData Collection

There were 276 Title I, Part A campuses in the Houston Independent School District (HISD) during 2010–2011. These campuses consisted of eight early childhood education centers, 163 elementary schools, 54 middle schools, six combined grade schools, and 45 high schools. All campuses were designated as schoolwide during the 2010–2011 school year (Appendix A).

Data were obtained using a variety of sources. Student demographics by ethnicity and Title I status were taken from 2010–2011 PEIMS Fall Collection (Resubmission). The PEIMS database is the statewide data collection and reporting system operated by the Texas Education Agency, which includes extensive information on students. It serves as the information database for many statewide reports on public education, such as the Academic Excellence Indicator System. For this report, PEIMS was used to identify those students who were coded a "6" or a "7" on campuses identified as schoolwide or targeted assisted, respectively. Parental involvement in the eight participation categories were obtained from the Chancery Student Information System. Parental demographics and perceptions were gathered from the 2010–2011 Parent Involvement Survey.

School staff tracked the participation of parental involvement on the campus through Chancery. Staff were asked to record parental involvement in the following eight areas where applicable: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteer (Appendix B). An end-of-year file was obtained from the Student Information Systems/Chancery Department to report the number of students whose parents were involved in these activities.

The Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was created to obtain parents' perceptions of how schools were involving them in their children's education. Survey templates were sent to the schools and they were instructed to print and distribute them to all parents of Title I students to ensure all parents had the opportunity to provide their input. Parents were asked to return the completed surveys to their children's schools or to complete them online. District Title I staff gathered the surveys from the schools and responses were manually tabulated. Districtwide, 41,460 surveys were completed and returned by parents. Surveys were produced in three languages: English, Spanish, and Vietnamese (Appendix C).

Data Analysis

School Participation Demographics

School participation demographics were based on the Title I enrollment and the number of students whose parents were recorded in Chancery, by ethnicity. The percent of parent involvement was calculated by dividing the number of coded students in an ethnicity group by the total number of Title I students in the group.

Survey Demographics

This section details the total number and percentage of respondents to the survey by demographic characteristics. Survey participation figures were based on participation responses to questions addressing the following characteristics: ethnicity, gender, English spoken in the home, educational level, and the number of children each respondent had attending an HISD school. Results were presented by cross-tabulating ethnicity by the remaining characteristics.

Parent Participation and Perception Comparisons

Results from the eight categories coded in Chancery were combined with relevant survey questions. The questions were grouped with the Chancery categories in collaboration with the Department of External Funding. These combinations of survey questions with the Chancery parent involvement categories provided additional insight from parents regarding the effectiveness of specific activities within each of the categories. Results were calculated by dividing the number of students coded in each parental involvement category by the number of Title I students enrolled.

Parents were asked to complete Likert scale items to score their level of agreement using the following categories: Strongly Agree, Agree, Neutral, Disagree, and Strongly Disagree. The percentages of parents selecting each category were calculated by dividing the number of parents selecting a category by the total responding to each item.

Two questions were included in each of the Parent Involvement Categories. They were: Question 10: “The school communicated with me often in a language that I could understand.” And, Question 12: “The school provided opportunities for families from different backgrounds to participate in school activities.” These two questions were included in each category because communication with parents and providing opportunities for them to participate can impact the extent to which parent involvement is supported in each category. Questions 10 and 12 on the Parental Involvement Survey impacted each of the seven parental involvement categories, and their responses were repeated.

Data Limitations

The number of surveys received from parents represented 21 percent of the total Title I students enrolled during the 2010–2011 school year.

Results

What were the demographic characteristics of students whose parents were coded in Chancery and parents who responded to the Title I Parent Involvement Survey?

From the 276 Title I, Part A campuses, 194,988 students were enrolled in HISD. The 443 American Indian Title I students had the highest percentage of parental involvement participation from Chancery data among all ethnic groups (99 percent). Hispanic students represented the largest ethnic group enrolled (124,405) and had the fourth highest parent involvement participation rate at 83 percent. African American Title I students represented the lowest parent participation rate coded from Chancery (72 percent) (See page 37 for additional participation results.)

The largest ethnic group responding to the Parent Involvement Survey was Hispanic (25,557) representing 62 percent of the 41,460 surveys returned for the 2010–2011 school year. Seventy-three percent of all respondents were women. The category of White women was the highest percentage of persons responding (80 percent) by gender. The highest percentage of households who spoke English were White respondents (83 percent), while Hispanic respondents had the highest percentage (67 percent) who indicated that English was not spoken at home. Among all survey respondents, 69 percent had 1–2 children while 29 percent had three or more children. White students had the third largest enrollment of Title I students (11,629), and the second highest parent involvement participation rate of 95 percent coded in Chancery, with American Indian students having the highest parental involvement participation rate (99 percent).

How did the parent involvement information in Chancery compare to the parents’ perceptions as expressed on the 2010–2011 Title I Parent Involvement Survey?

Parents responding to the Title I, Part A 2010–2011 generally felt schools were successful in communicating with them in their home language and providing them with opportunities to participate in school activities. Districtwide, 88 percent of the survey participants responded that they “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 10 “The school communicated in a language that I could understand.” Similarly, at a somewhat lower level, 79 percent “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” that families from different backgrounds had opportunities to participate in school activities (Question 12). (See pages 39–40 for districtwide survey results.)

Parent Compact

Among Title I, Part A schoolwide campuses, 81 percent of schoolwide compacts and 0 percent of individual parents compacts were established with parents on these campuses. There were no targeted assisted campuses during the 2010–2011 school year. Schools reporting to the Middle Schools Office had the highest percentage of students coded whose parents received schoolwide compacts (94 percent). The High Schools office had a lower percentage of parents coded (69 percent) as having schoolwide compacts in Chancery than the district rate (81 percent).

Schools continue to be consistent in establishing the compact between them and the students’ parents. Districtwide, 85 percent of parents surveyed responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 2 “The school has provided me a copy of the parent involvement policy” and Question 3: “The school provided me a copy of the parent/school compact” (83 percent). Those schools reporting to the Elementary Schools Office had a higher percentage than the district who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 2 (89 percent) and Question 3 (86 percent) when reviewing the Chancery feedback. The percentage of respondents with students at schools reporting to the Middle and High Schools offices was over 72 percent or higher “Strongly Agree” or “Agree”; however, their percentages were lower than the district and Elementary Schools Office.

When comparing 2009–2010 and 2010–2011, Chancery participation increased across school offices and districtwide levels. The percentage of survey respondents with children reporting to the Elementary Schools Office who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” increased on questions 2, 3, 10, and 12. Parents with students in schools reporting to the Middle Schools Office who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” decreased on questions 2 and 12, but showed an increased on question 10. The percent of parents with students attending schools reporting to the High Schools Office who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” decreased on questions 2, 3, 10, and 12 (Figure 1).

Figure 1. Parent compacts-Chancery participation and percent of respondents who strongly agree/agree by school offices and districtwide: 2009–2010 and 2010–2011.

Conferences

Districtwide, 52 percent of Title I, Part A parents participated in parent conferences. The participation rate was highest for the respondents who had children at the group of schools reporting to the Elementary Schools Office (64 percent). This rate exceeded the districtwide participation rate recorded in Chancery.

When reviewing survey respondents, 87 percent of believed that schools provided opportunities for conferences districtwide. The perceptions of survey respondents with students in schools reporting to the Elementary Schools Office showed that 91 percent responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 1: “The school has encouraged and provided opportunities for me to participate in school sponsored parent/teacher conferences, school curricula activities, and meetings.” Among schools reporting to the Middle (83 percent) and High Schools (78 percent) offices, a lower rate of parents responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to this question.

Chancery parent involvement rates were over 60 percent among parents whose students reported to the Elementary Schools Office when comparing 2009–2010 and 2010–2011 school years. Though survey responses of parents who answered “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” were more consistent across school office levels in 2009–2010, both elementary and districtwide participation levels increased in 2010–2011 for survey question 3 and 10. Parents with students reporting to the Elementary Schools Office continue to have the highest participation on Chancery and in the number of respondents on the 2010–2011 parent survey (Figure 2).

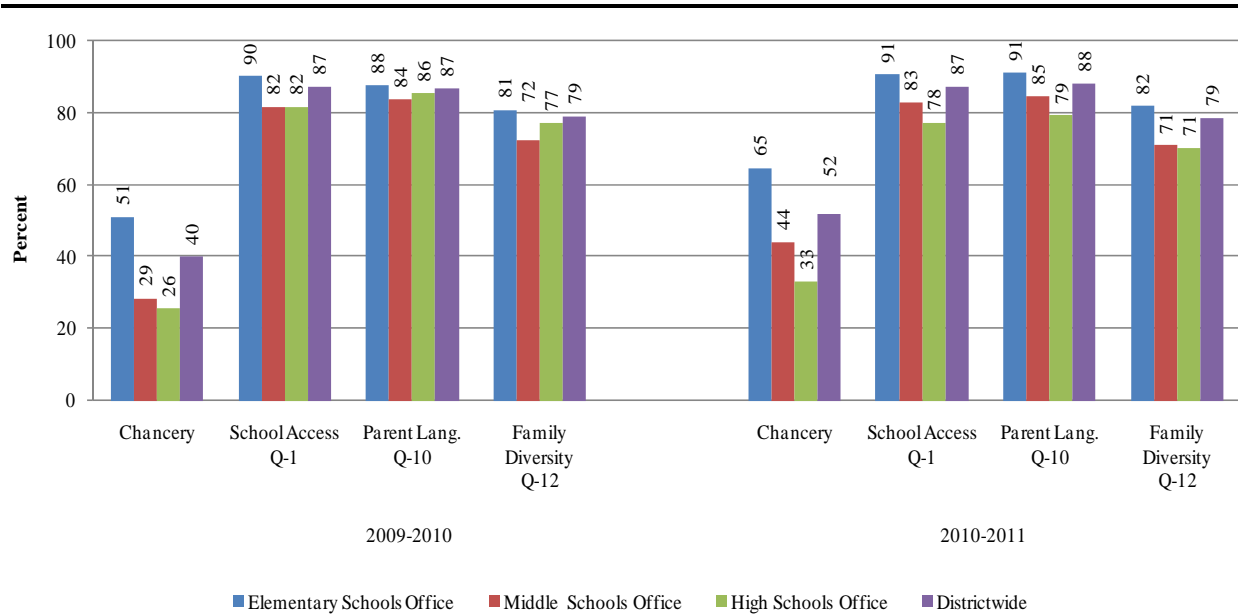

Figure 2. Conference-Chancery participation and percent of respondents who strongly agree/agree by school offices and districtwide: 2009–2010 and 2010–2011.

Education

A review of the education category showed that 19 percent of students had parents coded as participating districtwide. Those schools reporting to the Middle Schools Office (37 percent) was above the districtwide participation rate across school offices. Parent education activities included explaining training materials to help parents assist students.

Eighty-five percent of parents, “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 5 “The school has described and explained the curriculum and the academic expectations for students to me.” Those schools reporting to the Elementary Schools Office exceeded the districtwide percentage rate of those survey respondents who responded, “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” (88 percent). Those parent respondents who have children reporting to the Elementary Schools Office exceeded the districtwide percentage rate (87 percent vs. 84 percent) of those parents who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 6: “The school has described and explained the assessments used to determine student academic achievement to me” and (79 percent vs. 74 percent) to Question 9: “The school provided parent training and materials that helped me help my child(ren)”.

Parent participation on Chancery increased between 2009–2010 and 2010–2011. The largest increase was among parents of students reporting to the Middle Schools Office (17 percent vs. 37 percent). The percentage of participation among parents with students reporting to the Elementary Schools Office who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to questions 5, 6, and 10 was similar between 2009–2010 and 2010–2011. A decrease in the percentage of parents responding “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” occurred on questions nine and 12 when comparing 2009–2010 and 2010–2011 for parents with students reporting to the Middle and High Schools offices (Figure 3).

Figure 3. Education-Chancery participation and percent of respondents who strongly agree/agree by school offices and districtwide: 2009–2010 and 2010–2011.

Family Literacy

Districtwide, the participation rate for family literacy activities was 15 percent. When asked their perception of Question 8: “The school provided parent training that addresses my family needs,” 67 percent of the parents districtwide answered “Strongly Agree” or “Agree.” Those schools reporting to the Elementary Schools Office had a higher perception rate than the districtwide rate (71 percent). A review of the districtwide responses showed 22 percent of the respondents gave a neutral response and 11 percent of the respondents gave negative responses districtwide.

Chancery participation rates increased in the area of family literacy for students attending schools reporting to the Elementary and Middle Schools offices as well as districtwide. There was a decrease in the percentage of parents responding “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to questions 8, 10, and 12 for parents with students attending schools reporting to the High Schools Office between 2009–2010 and 2010–2011. Districtwide, survey rates remained consistent when comparing the two years (Figure 4).

Figure 4. Family Literacy-Chancery participation and percent of respondents who strongly agree/agree by school offices and districtwide: 2009–2010 and 2010–2011.

Parent Literacy

The least coded category on Chancery was “Parent Literacy” with only 10 percent of the students’ parents being coded as involved in parent literacy activities districtwide. Schools reporting to the Elementary (10 percent) and Middle (16 percent) Schools offices exceeded the districtwide percent participating.

Survey results of the major components of parent literacy: communication in an understandable language and opportunities for families with diverse backgrounds to participate widely were reported in the previous categories. An additional element of parent literacy is Question 14 on the survey: “The school did not have any barriers that prevented me from fully participating in parent involvement activities.” Districtwide, 78 percent of survey respondents replied that these barriers did not exist.

When comparing 2009–2010 and 2010–2011, the percentage of parents participating in parent literacy increased across all school offices and districtwide. The percentage of parents responding “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to question 10 increased among middle school parents while those responding to questions 12 and 14 decreased for parents with students attending schools reporting to the Middle and High Schools offices between 2009–2010 and 2010–2011. Though still below 20 percent, Chancery parental rates for 2010–2011 increased across school offices. The percentage of parents responding “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to question 10 increased among parents with students at the Elementary and Middle Schools offices as well as districtwide (Figure 5).

Figure 5. Parent Literacy-Chancery participation and percent of respondents who strongly agree/agree by school offices and districtwide: 2009–2010 and 2010–2011.

Planning

Districtwide, 11.2 percent of parents were coded as being involved in planning activities on Chancery. Parents responding to the following survey questions with “Strongly Agree” and “Agree” were: Question 4: “The school has provided opportunities for me to give input in the development of the parent involvement policy and the parent/school compact” (81 percent); Question 7: “The school encouraged me to give suggestions and share my experiences” (74 percent); and Question 11: “The school allowed me to give input on how parent involvement can be improved at my child(ren)’s campus(es)” (75 percent), districtwide.

The percentage of parental involvement recorded in Chancery for parent planning remains low when comparing percentage rates between 2009–2010 and 2010–2011. Parent Planning had the most survey questions associated with it. Districtwide, the percentage of respondents reporting “Strongly Agree” and “Agree” to questions 4, 7, 10, 11, and 12 appeared to be consistent when comparing the two years. However, parents with students reporting to the Elementary and Middle Schools offices increased when responding “Strongly Agree” and “Agree” to questions 4, 7, and 10 between 2009–2010 and 2010–2011 (Figure 6).

Volunteering

Volunteering is the last category tracked in Chancery on the Title I Parent Involvement screen. Districtwide, 13 percent of students' parents had this item coded on Chancery. Those schools reporting to the Middle Schools Office had the highest participation rate (20 percent). Question 13 on the survey: "The school utilizes community resources (for example: corporate business partners, churches, and other organizations) to improve student learning," was used to gather parent perceptions of volunteer opportunities. Of those parents responding "Strongly Agree" or "Agree," the districtwide positive perception rate was 64 percent.

While the percentage of parent involvement in the area of volunteering in Chancery increased across the Elementary and Middle School offices, it remained lowest among parents with students reporting to the High Schools Office. The percentage of respondents reporting "Strongly Agree" and "Agree" to questions 10, 12, and 13 showed little change between 2009–2010 and 2010–2011. Those parents with students reporting to the Elementary Schools Office continued to have the highest percentage of parents responding "Strongly Agree" and "Agree" to questions 10, 12, and 13 (Figure 7).

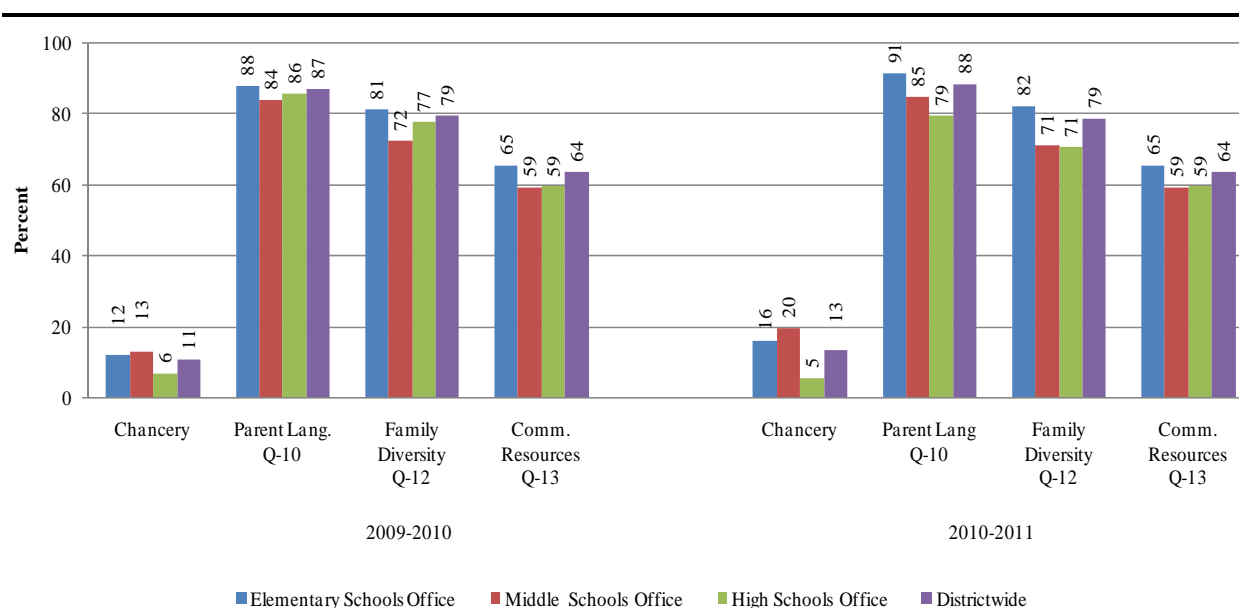

Figure 7. Volunteer-Chancery participation and percent of respondents who strongly agree/agree by school offices and districtwide: 2009–2010 and 2010–2011.

Discussion

Over two-thirds (81 percent) of parents with children in Title I, Part A schools were coded on Chancery indicating that they had established schoolwide or individual compacts; however, parent participation rate was 52 or lower in all other categories. Districtwide, parent participation in parent literacy and planning was particularly low, with participation rates reported at 10 percent and 11 percent, respectively. The low levels in all of these areas, specifically Parent Literacy and Planning, indicate that schools must dedicate more attention to engaging their students' parents in these areas. Those low levels may also indicate that schools may not be consistently recording these activities in the Chancery system.

Districtwide, high percentages of parents responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” that schools were successful in involving parents in school activities and communicating with them in their home language on the Title I, Part A 2010–2011 Parent Involvement Survey. The questions with the highest levels of agreement districtwide were Question 1: “The school has encouraged and provided opportunities for me to participate in school sponsored parent/teacher conferences, school curricular activities, and meetings” (87 percent) and Question 10: “The school communicated with me often in a language that I could understand” (88 percent).

Among the school offices, those schools assigned to the Elementary Schools Office appeared to have the highest levels of parent involvement in Schoolwide Parent Compacts and Parent Conferences recorded in Chancery. They also had the highest percentage of respondents who “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 1– Question 14. Schools reporting to the Middle Schools Office had the highest levels of parent involvement in Education, Family Literacy, Parent Literacy, Planning, and Volunteering recorded on Chancery.

Recommendations

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement components, schools must provide opportunities for parents to engage in regular, two-way, and meaningful communication involving student academic learning and school activities. Schools are also required to develop strategies to increase parental involvement (U.S. Department of Education, 2009). In line with the federal law, the following recommendations are suggested.

1. Parent involvement activities, particularly campus events that parents are encouraged to attend, should be stressed at campuses identified with low participation rates in Chancery. Schools should place more emphasis on coding of students' whose parents participated in these activities in Chancery. These events could include open house and parent-teacher organization meetings.
2. Successful plans and activities that can be replicated to raise the levels of parent involvement need to be identified.

Chancery Parent Involvement Screens

Screen I

Screen I displays the main interface for Title I, Part A Parent Involvement. It includes a sidebar menu on the left with various navigation options. The main content area shows a form for Title I Coding and Title I Services. The Title I Coding section includes a table with columns for Effective Date, Title I Part A Code, Homework, Math, Reading, Science, Social Studies, Guidance, Social Work, Health, and Comments. The Title I Services section includes a table with columns for Start Date, Services/Program, Reading, Writing (Lang Arts), End Date, Comments, Mathematics, Science, and Social Studies. The Parent Involvement section includes a table with columns for School Year, Individual Compact, Schoolwide Compact, Conference, Educ/Training, Family Literacy, Parent Literacy, Planning, and Volunteer.

Screen II

Screen II displays the Parent Involvement form. It includes a dropdown menu for School Year, currently set to 2006-07. Below this, there are two sections: Parent Compact Types and Parent Involvement Types. The Parent Compact Types section has two checkboxes: Individual Compact and Schoolwide Compact. The Parent Involvement Types section has seven checkboxes: Conference (checked), Educ/Training, Family Literacy, Parent Literacy, Planning, and Volunteer.
