SUBJECT: TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT REPORT 2011–2012

CONTACT: Carla Stevens, 713-556-6700

Attached is a copy of the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Report for 2011–2012. This report describes the level of family involvement in Title I schools as reported by schools through Chancery and by families through the Parent Involvement Survey. Household demographic data are also included, and the data are aggregated by school, school office, and district.

Some of the highlights are as follows:

- Hispanic students (122,117) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide and had an 82.5 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery. African American students had the lowest rate at 74.3 percent, and overall, the district had an 80.3 percent parent involvement participation rate recorded in Chancery.
- The 2011–2012 Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was completed by 35,455 parents reflecting 19 percent of all Title I students enrolled. Asian/Pacific Islander students had the highest Parent Involvement Survey completion rate with 52.1 percent. Other ethnic groups had a survey completion rate of 16–17 percent.
- According to Chancery, 79.6 percent of parents were identified as having received a copy of the parent compact and/or parent involvement policy. Among other parent participation categories in Chancery, the category with the highest participation rate was Conference with 54.4 percent and the category with the lowest participation rate was Planning with 11.2 percent.
- The Parent Involvement Survey question with the highest agreement rate was “The school did not have any barriers that prevented me from fully participating in parent involvement activities” with 92.2 percent, which is an increase from 78.2 percent in 2011. The questions with the lowest agreement rates were “The school provided parent training that addresses my family needs” with 64.4 percent and “The school provided parent training and materials that helped me help my child(ren)” with 68.7 percent.

TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT 2011–2012

Executive Summary

Program Description

The Title I, Part A program developed out of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) from 1965 and the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) from 2001. The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and achieve, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and assessments. The program's goal is accomplished by providing supplemental funding for educational programs to Title I, Part A schools, which have a high percentage of students living in poverty.

Title I, Part A also includes provisions to engage parents in the education process, which helps schools and parents share accountability for high student achievement. The provisions include expanded public school choice, a broader range of supplemental educational services, local development of parental involvement plans, and building parents' capacity for using effective practices to improve their children's academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program gives parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Guide (Department of External Funding, 2010), parents must be involved in the decisions that impact their children's academic success. For the purpose of identifying how parents were involved, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, school wide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2011–2012 Title I coding procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these categories (Department of External Funding, 2011).

Purpose of the Evaluation Report

The purpose of this report was to assess the level of parental involvement coded in Chancery by school staff and according to the feedback gathered on the 2011–2012 Parent Involvement Survey. Household demographic data were noted where available, and data were aggregated by school, school office, and district.

Highlights

- Hispanic students (122,117) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide and had an 82.5 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery. African American students had the lowest rate at 74.3 percent, and overall, the district had an 80.3 percent parent involvement participation rate recorded in Chancery.
- Wharton Dual Language Academy and Pin Oak Middle School had the highest participation rates at 98.4 percent in Chancery while the following schools had participation rates below 10 percent: Jack Yates High School, Vision Academy, James Ryan Middle School, Sharpstown High School, Maud Gordon Elementary School, Carter Woodson School, George Scarborough High School, Briar Meadow Charter School, Young Scholars Academy, TSU Charter Lab, and Kandy Stripe Academy.

- The 2011–2012 Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was completed by 35,455 parents reflecting 19 percent of all Title I students enrolled. Asian/Pacific Islander students had the highest Parent Involvement Survey completion rate with 52.1 percent. Other ethnic groups had a survey completion rate of 16–17 percent.
- Felix Cook Elementary School (93.5 percent) and James Burrus Elementary School (93.3 percent) had the highest Parent Involvement Survey completion rates while the following schools had a 0 percent survey completion rate: John Reagan High School, Stephen Waltrip High School, Kashmere High School, Evan Worthing High School, Gordon Elementary School, and Kandy Stripe Academy.
- According to Chancery, 79.6 percent of parents were identified as having received a copy of the parent compact and/or parent involvement policy. Among other parent participation categories in Chancery, the category with the highest participation rate was Conference with 54.4 percent and the category with the lowest participation rate was Planning with 11.2 percent.
- The Parent Involvement Survey question with the highest agreement rate was “The school did not have any barriers that prevented me from fully participating in parent involvement activities” with 92.2 percent, which is an increase from 78.2 percent in 2011. The questions with the lowest agreement rates were “The school provided parent training that addresses my family needs” with 64.4 percent and “The school provided parent training and materials that helped me help my child(ren)” with 68.7 percent.

Recommendations

1. Schools should consider implementing additional ways for parents to complete the Parent Involvement Survey in order to increase the completion rate from 19 percent. Schools can consider providing incentives for the parent and/or the student if a survey is completed. Perhaps the district can also consider providing the survey in additional languages.
2. The data coded in Chancery showed low parental involvement (11–19 percent) in the areas of Education Training, Parent and Family Literacy, Planning, and Volunteering, and the reasons for the low rates of involvement should be investigated. The activities are potentially not accessible to parents, and solutions can be found based on the reasons behind the low rates of involvement.
3. Schools with lower parental involvement rates should consider adopting training activities and communication methods used by schools with higher parental involvement rates.

Administrative Response

The purpose of Title I, Part A Program is to ensure that all children, particularly low achieving children in the highest-poverty schools, have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and reach, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and State academic assessments.

Parent feedback is critical when assessing the tools, guidance, and resources available to the parents of students attending Title I, Part A schoolwide campuses and the impact it will have on student academic achievement.

Based on the 2011–2012 Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Report, the completion rate of the Parent Involvement Survey was 19 percent. The Department of External Funding will address the low completion rate and encourage campuses to increase the number of surveys submitted online as well as submitting hard copies of the survey.

Secondly, the Department of External Funding will meet with the Parent Engagement Department to address the low number of participation of the parental involvement types indicated in the report. Campuses will receive additional support regarding parent involvement activities and trainings on their campuses.

In conclusion, research has shown the implications that parental involvement has on student achievement. Priority will be given to campuses that need additional support and guidance on increasing parental involvement on their campuses.

Introduction

The Title I, Part A program developed out of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) from 1965 and the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) from 2001. The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and achieve, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and assessments. The program's goal is accomplished by providing supplemental funding for educational programs to Title I, Part A schools, which have a high percentage of students living in poverty.

Title I, Part A school programs are implemented on either a schoolwide or targeted assistance basis. According to the Title I, Part A Implementation Guide (Department of External Funding, 2005), a schoolwide program permits a school with 40 percent or greater of its students at the poverty level to use funds from Title I, Part A and other federal education program funds and resources to improve the educational program of the entire school in order to raise academic achievement for all students. This contrasts with the targeted assistance program, through which Title I, Part A funds are used only to provide supplementary educational services for eligible students who are economically disadvantaged.

Title I, Part A also includes provisions to engage parents in the education process, which helps schools and parents share accountability for high student achievement. The provisions include expanded public school choice, a broader range of supplemental educational services, local development of parental involvement plans, and building parents' capacity for using effective practices to improve their children's academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program gives parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Guide (Department of External Funding, 2010), parents must be involved in the decisions that impact their children's academic success. For the purpose of identifying how parents were involved, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2011–2012 Title I Coding Procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these categories (Department of External Funding, 2011):

Individual Compact – A contract that lists the responsibilities of parents, staff, and students from Title I Targeted Assisted Schools to improve student achievement.

Schoolwide Compact – A contract that lists the responsibilities of parents, staff, and students from Title I Schoolwide Schools to improve student achievement.

Conference – A meeting between the parent and classroom teacher which may also include others such as the assistant principal, counselor, or other stakeholders.

Education/Training – Classes or topics covering parenting skills and ways parents can assist their children in mastering the state's academic assessments and standards.

Family Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent or other family member and children become literate in reading and computer skills.

Parent Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent or other family member and children become literate in reading, computer skills, and/or job skills (e.g. GED, ESL, and computer literacy classes).

Planning – An opportunity for parents to meet and plan activities that will increase family involvement at the local campus, as well as an opportunity for parents to give input about how Title I, Part A funds are used at the local campus.

Volunteering – Family members at the local campus participating in activities that help foster an environment conducive for learning.

Supporting Research

Many studies have shown that parental involvement correlates positively with student achievement (Fan and Chen, 2001; Shaver and Walls, 1998; Sui-Chu and Willms, 1996, Fehrmann, Keith, and Reimers, 1987). Student achievement can be operationally defined as GPA, standardized test scores, and/or post-secondary success, among many other indicators. Parental involvement is also a broad term and can refer to activities ranging from reading with students at home to collaborating with the community in order to improve educational opportunities for students. Epstein (1987) identified six major types of parental involvement that are widely accepted: parenting, communicating, volunteering, learning at home, decision-making, and community collaboration. The eight areas of parent involvement coded in Chancery by the district closely mirror Epstein's categories. The variation in these areas demonstrates that there are many ways for parents to be involved and positively impact their children's achievement.

Studies have also shown that parental involvement correlates positively with student achievement regardless of ethnicity or socioeconomic status (Jeynes, 2007). However, some studies show that socioeconomic status and parental involvement are positively related (Balli, 1996; Brace, 1996). In other words, parental involvement is usually low in families of low socioeconomic status and parental involvement is usually high in families of high socioeconomic status. This makes the Title I, Part A parental involvement provisions all the more important. If parents of students in Title I schools are encouraged and held accountable to engage in their children's learning, student achievement should increase.

Method

Data Collection

There were 258 Title I, Part A campuses in the Houston Independent School District (HISD) during the 2011–2012 school year. All campuses were designated as schoolwide.

Data were obtained from a variety of sources. Student demographics by ethnicity and Title I status were taken from the 2011–2012 PEIMS Fall Collection (Resubmission), which is operated by the Texas Education Agency. Parental involvement data in the eight participation categories were obtained from the Chancery Student Information System and were recorded by school staff. The percentage of parental involvement was calculated by dividing the number of coded students by the number of students enrolled.

Parental demographics and perception data were gathered from the 2011–2012 Parent Involvement Survey (Appendix A). Surveys were distributed to the Title I schools, and the schools were instructed to give the surveys to parents. Parents were asked to return the completed surveys to the schools or to complete them online. District Title I staff gathered the completed surveys from the schools and manually entered the responses. Surveys were provided in three languages: English, Spanish, and Vietnamese. Each survey question contained five Likert scale answer choices: Strongly Agree, Agree, Neutral, Disagree, and Strongly Disagree. The percentage of parents selecting each category was calculated by dividing the number of parents selecting an answer choice by the total number responding to each item. Responses to the survey questions were organized into the eight Chancery categories and compared.

Data Limitations

The number of surveys received from parents represented only 19 percent of the total number of Title I students enrolled during the 2011–2012 school year.

Results

- Hispanic students (122,117) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide and had an 82.5 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery. African American students had the lowest rate at 74.3 percent, and overall, the district had an 80.3 percent parent involvement participation rate recorded in Chancery.
- Wharton Dual Language Academy and Pin Oak Middle School had the highest participation rates at 98.4 percent in Chancery while the following schools had participation rates below 10 percent: Jack Yates High School, Vision Academy, James Ryan Middle School, Sharpstown High School, Maud Gordon Elementary School, Carter Woodson School, George Scarborough High School, Briarmeadow Charter School, Young Scholars Academy, TSU Charter Lab, and Kandy Stripe Academy.
- The 2011–2012 Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was completed by 35,455 parents reflecting 19 percent of all Title I students enrolled. Asian/Pacific Islander students had the highest Parent Involvement Survey completion rate with 52.2 percent. Other ethnic groups had a survey completion rate of 16–17 percent.
- Felix Cook Elementary School (93.5 percent) and James Burrus Elementary School (93.4 percent) had the highest Parent Involvement Survey completion rates while the following schools had a 0 percent survey completion rate: John Reagan High School, Stephen Waltrip High School, Kashmere High School, Evan Worthing High School, Gordon Elementary School, and Kandy Stripe Academy.
- As recorded in Chancery, 79.6 percent of parents were identified as having received a copy of the parent compact and/or parent involvement policy, which is a slight decrease from 81.0 percent in 2010–2011. Of the parents who completed the Parent Involvement Survey, 78–82 percent indicated on questions 2 and 3 that they had received a copy of the parent compact and/or parent involvement policy (Figure 1, page 6). The percentage of parents who agreed or strongly agreed declined for all questions in this section compared to 2010–2011.

- According to the results coded in Chancery by school staff, 54.4 percent of parents were identified as having participated in a parent conference, which is an increase from 52.1 percent in 2010–2011. Of the parents who completed the Parent Involvement Survey, 84.9 percent indicated on question 1 that their school provided opportunities to participate in a parent conference (Figure 2). This is a decrease from 2010–2011.

- In Chancery, 18.9 percent of parents were identified as having received training on parenting skills or ways to help their children improve academically, which is about the same from 2010–2011.

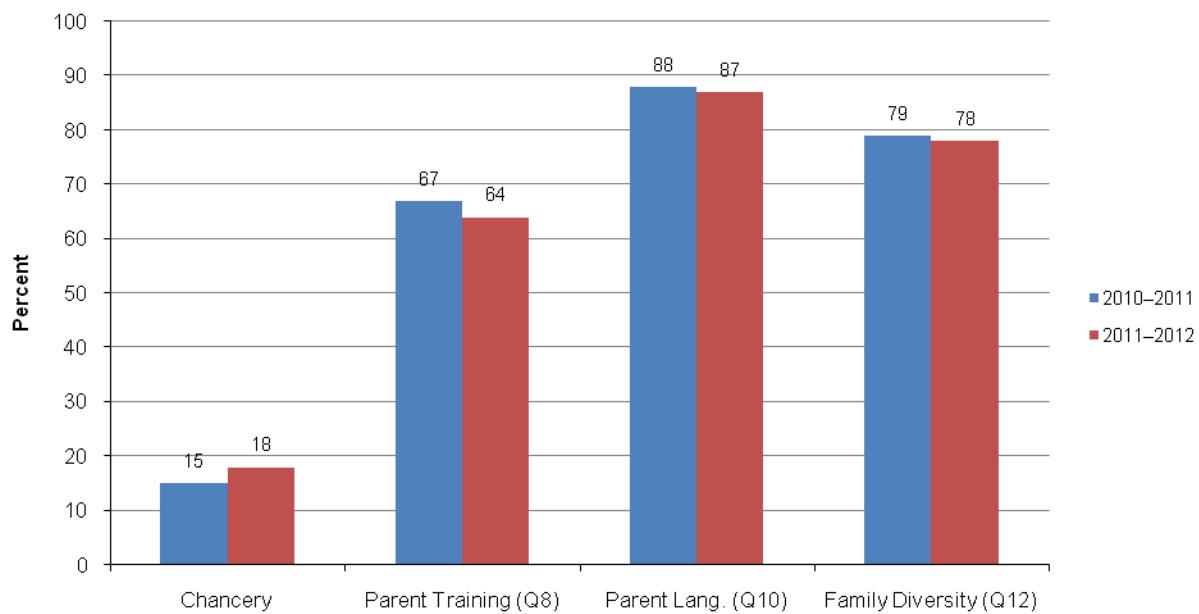

According to the Parent Involvement Survey, 69–82 percent of parents received an explanation of the school curriculum (Q5), academic expectations (Q5), assessments (Q6), and/or training materials to help their children (Q9) (Figure 3). These percentages were lower than the percentages from 2010–2011.

- According to Chancery, 18.1 percent of families and 11.6 percent of parents were identified as having participated in family literacy and parent literacy activities, which are increases from 14.6 percent and 11.2 percent respectively in 2010–2011. According to the Parent Involvement Survey, 64.4 percent of parents responded that their school provided parent training events (Q8). On the survey, 87.4 percent of parents indicated that the school communicated with them in a language they could understand (Q10). Question 14, regarding no barriers to participation, had the highest percentage of parents agreeing or strongly agreeing (92.2 percent), which is an increase from 78.2 percent in 2010–2011 (Figures 4 and 5, page 8). The percentage of parents who agreed or strongly agreed to all remaining questions decreased compared to 2010–2011.

- For the Planning category in Chancery, 11.2 percent of parents were identified as having engaged in meeting and making plans to increase parental involvement at their children’s schools. According to the Parent Involvement Survey, 71–78 percent of parents indicated on questions 4, 7, and 11 that they were given opportunities to provide feedback and suggestions to their children’s schools about the parental involvement policy and the parent/school compact (Figure 6, page 9). The percentage of parents who agreed or strongly agreed decreased from 2010–2011.

- According to Chancery, 14.4 percent of parents were identified as volunteering at their children's schools, which is an increase from 13.3 percent in 2010–2011. The percentage of parents agreeing that schools utilize community resources to improve student learning (Q13) increased from 63.5 percent in 2010–2011 to 84.5 percent in 2011–2012 (Figure 7).

- According to parents who completed the Parent Involvement Survey, Attucks Middle School and Energized for STEM Southeast High School had the lowest percentages of parents who agreed or strongly agreed with many of the questions. Liberty High School had a low percentage of parents who agreed that their school provided them with a copy of the parent involvement policy, and Pearl Rucker Elementary School had a low percentage of parents who agreed that their school utilized community resources to improve student learning (Table 1).

Discussion

The Title I, Part A program is designed to help students living in poverty obtain a high quality education and achieve proficiency on state standards and assessments by providing additional funding to their schools. The program calls for parents to be involved in their children's education process, and as a way of holding schools, parents, and children accountable, HISD developed a Parent Compact. For the 2011–2012 school year, school staff recorded in Chancery that 79.6 percent of parents in the district received a copy of the Parent Compact. According to the parents who completed the Parent Involvement Survey, 77.8 percent of them agreed that their school provided them with a copy of the Parent Compact (Q3) and 82.2 percent of them agreed that their school provided them with a copy of the Parent Involvement Policy (Q2).

Participating in a conference with teachers or other school staff members was another way for parents to show involvement. According to the data coded in Chancery, 54.4 percent of parents in the district attended a conference. Of the parents who completed the Parent Involvement Survey, 84.9 percent agreed that their school provided opportunities for them to participate in school-sponsored parent conferences, school activities, and meetings (Q1).

The other categories of parent involvement in Chancery (Education, Family Literacy, Parent Literacy, Planning, and Volunteering) showed lower parent participation rates (11–19 percent). A higher percentage of parents (64–92 percent) who completed the Parent Involvement Survey agreed that their schools at least provided opportunities for them to be involved in ways related to the categories listed above. These results indicate that while schools are providing various avenues for parents to be involved in their children's education process, many parents cannot or choose not to participate.
