SUBJECT: TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT REPORT 2008–2009

Attached is the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Report for 2008–2009. This report reflects an assessment of the level of parental involvement coded in Chancery in relation to the feedback gathered on the 2008–2009 Parent Involvement Survey. The percentage of the responses received from the survey and the percentages of parental involvement in Chancery were included for each campus. The household demographic data were noted where available. Finally, this report provided a region and district-level summation of student participation and feedback in Chancery and on the 2008–2009 survey.

Some of the highlights are as follows:

- Among 186,639 Title I students enrolled in HISD, the parent involvement participation rate coded in Chancery was 68.5 percent. White students had the highest percentage of parental involvement at 79.7 percent.
- The number responding to the Parent Involvement Survey was 16,668 representing 8.9 percent of the Title I students. The highest percentage responding by ethnicity and gender were Hispanic women, 78.5 percent. Among all respondents, 28.6 percent had three or more children.
- Overall, schools appear to be successfully communicating with parents in their home language and providing them with opportunities to participate in school activities. Districtwide, 88.4 percent of the survey participants responded that they “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” that “the school communicated in a language that I could understand”. Similarly, although at a somewhat lower level, 80.2 percent “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” that families from different backgrounds had opportunities to participate in school activities.
- Schools appeared to be diligent in establishing the compact between them and the students’ parents. Districtwide, over 80 percent “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” that their schools provided them with copies of the parent involvement policy (84.8 percent) and parents/school compact (82.2 percent).

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT 2008–2009

Program Description

The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and reach, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and state academic assessments. The Title I, Part A program (Part A-Improving Basic Programs Operated By Local Educational Agencies) was authorized by ESEA and reauthorized by NCLB Act of 2001.

Under this act, provisions to engage parents in the education process were made. The program's goal is to increase the presence of parents involved by providing funding and opportunities for parents of Title I, Part A students on either a schoolwide or targeted assistance campus. These provisions stress shared accountability between schools and parents for high student achievement, including expanded public school choice and supplemental educational services for eligible children in low-performing schools, local development of parental involvement plans with sufficient flexibility to address local needs, and building parents' capacity for using effective practices to improve their own children's academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program affords parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Guide (Department of External Funding, 2008c), a parent must be involved in the decisions associated with impacting their children's academic success. For the purpose of identifying how parents were involved, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2008–2009 Title I coding procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these types (Department of External Funding, 2008a).

Federal Criteria for Identifying Title I, Part A Campuses

Title I, Part A regulations require that one percent of the total school allocation be set aside for parental involvement activities. Schools are required to provide parents with a written parental involvement policy, which must be included in the district's plans. Additionally, schools must collaborate with parents in an effort to build capacity while also integrating other state/federally funded educational programs, conducting annual evaluations, and design new strategies that impact parents and students (Department of External Funding, 2008b).

Purpose of the Evaluation Report

The purpose this report was to assess the level of parental involvement coded onto Chancery in relation to the feedback gathered on the 2008–2009 Parent Involvement Survey. The percentage of the responses received from the survey and the percentages of parental involvement on Chancery were included for each campus. The household demographic data were noted where available. Finally, this report provided a region and district-level summation of student participation and feedback in Chancery and on the 2008–2009 survey.

Key Findings

1. What were the demographic characteristics of students whose parents were coded in Chancery and parents who responded to the Title I Parent Involvement Survey?
 - Hispanic students (117,721) represented the largest number of Title I students districtwide. They had a 70.6 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery.
 - White students had the third largest enrollment of Title I students (11,097), and the highest parent involvement participation rate of 79.7 percent coded in Chancery.
 - The Title I Parent Involvement Survey was completed by 16,668 parents reflecting 8.9 percent of Title I students enrolled.
 - Sixty-two percent of survey respondents were Hispanic. Of the Hispanic and White respondents, women represented the highest percentage (78.5 percent) of persons responding by gender.
 - African American respondents represented the highest percentage (88.3 percent) of households who spoke English, while Hispanic respondents had the highest percentage (70.0 percent) indicating that English was not spoken at home.
2. How did the parent involvement information in Chancery compare to the perceptions of parents expressed on the 2008–2009 Title I Parent Involvement Survey?
 - Districtwide 68.0 percent of parents were identified in Chancery as having received a copy of the parent involvement policy or parent/school compact. A review of the Chancery categories showed 45.4 percent of parents participated in parent conferences and 14.7 percent participated in activities coded as “education”. The family literacy participation rate was 10.5 percent and the parental literacy participation rate was 7.7 percent. The rate of parent participation in planning activities districtwide was 7.7 percent, while volunteerism was recorded at a rate of 10.3 percent.
 - Schools appeared to be diligent in establishing the compact between them and the students’ parents. Districtwide, over 80 percent “strongly agree” or “agree” to Questions 2: “The school has provided me a copy of the parent involvement policy” (84.8 percent) and Question 3: “The school provided me a copy of the parent/school compact” (82.2 percent).
 - Survey responses reported much higher participation rates in all activities compared to data actually coded in Chancery

Recommendations

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement components, schools must provide opportunities for parents to engage in regular, two-way, and meaningful communication involving student academic learning and school activities. Schools are also required to develop strategies to increase parental involvement (U.S. Department of Education, 2009). In line with the federal law, the following recommendations are suggested.

1. Administrative regions and schools identified with low participation rates on Chancery need to stress parent involvement activities as part of campus events where parents are encouraged to attend, and the coding of participation in these activities in Chancery. These events could include open house and parent-teacher organization meetings.
2. Administrative regions and schools need to identify successful plans and activities in the South and West regions that can be replicated in other regions in the district to raise the levels of parent involvement, as these two regions had the highest response rates from parents regarding activities.

TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT 2008–2009

INTRODUCTION

Program History

After assessing the educational opportunities of those children who were considered economically deprived, President Lyndon B. Johnson constructed legislation in 1965 that would give underprivileged students supplemental support with their educational needs. The Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) gave birth to Title I, Part A as we know it today. Today, as the largest federal block program supporting elementary and secondary education, the purpose of this program is to:

provide financial assistance...to local educational agencies serving areas with concentrations of children from low-income families; and to expand and improve their educational programs by various means...which contribute particularly to meeting the special educational needs of educationally deprived children (PL 89-10, Section 201).

In 1965, ESEA was put into law, which included Title I, and has had several reauthorizations. Initial changes attempted to close the gap of poverty, while recent changes have been made to create more rigorous standards of accountability across all states (Mizelle and Irvin, 2000). In 2001, ESEA was again reauthorized and renamed No Child Left Behind (NCLB). The reauthorization brought the most sweeping changes since the implementation of ESEA. According to the National School Board Association (2000), these changes were put into effect "...to increase the role of parents in program design, and to ensure that Title I funds were used to supplement (not replace) local funds." Included in those changes were detailed provisions that required every Title I school to set aside one percent of their per pupil allocation for parental involvement:

A local educational agency may receive funds under this part only if such agency implements programs, activities, and procedures for the involvement of parents in programs assisted under this part consistent with this section. Such programs, activities, and procedures shall be planned and implemented with meaningful consultation with parents of participating children. (PL 107-110, Section 1118 (a)(1))

In addition to the requirements for schools to serve parents, districts are required to formulate and assess their parental involvement policy within their Title I district plan. (Department of External Funding, 2008c). The policy must state that parents have been given an opportunity to participate in their child's education through signed compacts, conferencing, education opportunities, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The district parent involvement supervisor ensures the district remains in compliance with the provisions expressed in the law.

Program Description

The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and reach, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and state academic assessments. The Title I, Part A program (Improving Basic Programs) was authorized by ESEA and reauthorized by NCLB Act of 2001.

Under this act, provisions to engage parents in the education process were made. The program's goal is to increase the presence of parents involved by providing funding and opportunities for parents of Title I,

Part A students on either a schoolwide or targeted assistance campus. These provisions stress shared accountability between schools and parents for high student achievement, including expanded public school choice and supplemental educational services for eligible children in low-performing schools, local development of parental involvement plans with sufficient flexibility to address local needs, and building parents' capacity for using effective practices to improve their own children's academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program affords parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Guide (Department of External Funding, 2008a), a parent must be involved in the decisions that affect their children's academic success. To identify how parents were involved, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2008–2009 Title I coding procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these types (Department of External Funding, 2008c). The 2008–2009 Title I implementation guide identified the following definitions:

Individual Compact – A contract that lists the responsibilities of Title I Targeted Assisted School parents, staff and students for improved student achievement.

Schoolwide Compact– A contract that lists the responsibilities of Title I Schoolwide School parents, staff and students for improved student achievement.

Parent Conference – A one-on-one meeting between the parent and classroom teacher at a minimum; may include others such as the assistant principal, counselor, or another stakeholder.

Parent Education – Classes or topics covering parenting skills and actions that the parent can assist their child(ren) to become successful mastering the state's challenging academic standards and assessments.

Family Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent (or other family member) and child(ren) to become literate in reading and computer skills.

Parent Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent (or other family member) become literate and child(ren) to become literate in reading, computer skills, and/or job skills (i.e. GED, ESL, and Computer Literacy Classes).

Planning – An opportunity for parents to meet and plan activities that will increase parental involvement at the local campus, as well as an opportunity for parents to have input about how the Title I, Part A funds are used at the local campus.

Parent Volunteer – Parents at the local campus involved in capacity building activities that help foster an environment conducive for learning.

In determining the level of responsibility shared between the school and the parent for the child's education, a compact is generated where all parties are asked to sign. This compact must: be developed jointly, outline the responsibility by the stakeholders, describe the school's responsibility in guiding instruction and the parent's role in supporting the learning process, and detail the importance of communication between the parents and the school (Department of External Funding, 2008c).

Federal Criteria for Identifying Title I, Part A Campuses

Title I, Part A regulations require that one percent of the total school allocation be set aside for parental involvement activities. Schools are required to provide parents with a written parental involvement policy, which must be included in the district's plans. Additionally, schools must collaborate with parents in an effort to build capacity while also integrating other state/federally funded educational programs, conducting annual evaluations, and designing new strategies that impact parents and students (Department of External Funding, 2008b).

Purpose of the Evaluation Report

The purpose of the report was to assess the level of parental involvement based on data obtained from Chancery and the feedback gathered from the 2008–2009 Parent Involvement Survey. The percentage of the responses received from the survey and the percentages of parental involvement on Chancery were included for each campus. Additionally, the demographic data were included. Finally, this report provided a region and district-level summation of the data obtained from Chancery and the 2008–2009 survey. The following research questions were addressed.

1. What were the demographic characteristics of students whose parents were coded in Chancery and parents who responded to the Title I Parent Involvement Survey?
2. How did the parent involvement information in Chancery compare to the perceptions of parents expressed on the 2008–2009 Title I Parent Involvement Survey?

MethodsData Collection

There were 272 Title I, Part A campuses in the Houston Independent School District (HISD) during 2008–2009. These campuses consisted of six early childhood centers, 177 elementary schools, 49 middle schools, one middle/high school, and 39 high schools. Of this number, 266 were designated as schoolwide campuses and six were designated as targeted assisted campuses (Appendix A).

Data were obtained using a variety of sources. Student demographics by ethnicity and Title I status were taken from 2008–2009 PEIMS Fall Collection (Resubmission). The PEIMS database is the statewide data collection and reporting system operated by the Texas Education Agency, which includes extensive information on students. It serves as the information database for many statewide reports on public education, such as the Academic Excellence Indicator System. For this report, PEIMS was used to identify those students who were coded a “6” or a “7” on campuses identified as schoolwide or targeted assisted, respectively. Parental involvement in the eight participation categories were obtained from Chancery. Parental demographics and perceptions were gathered from the 2008–2009 Parent Involvement Survey.

School staff tracked the participation of parental involvement on the campus through Chancery. Staff were asked to record parental involvement in the following eight areas where applicable: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteer (Appendix B). An end-of-year file was obtained from the Student Information Systems Department to report the number of students whose parents were involved in these activities.

The Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Survey was created to obtain parents' perceptions of how schools were involving them in their children's education. Survey templates were sent to the schools and they were instructed to print and distribute to all parents of Title I students to ensure all parents had the opportunity to provide their input. Parents were asked to return the completed surveys to their children's schools. Region Title I staff gathered the surveys from the schools and responses were manually tabulated. Districtwide, 16,668 surveys were completed and returned by parents. Surveys were produced in three languages: English, Spanish, and Vietnamese (Appendix C).

Data Analysis

School Participation Demographics

School participation demographics were based on the Title I enrollment and the number of students whose parents were recorded in Chancery, by ethnicity. The percent of parent involvement was calculated by dividing the number of students' parents in an ethnicity group by the total number of Title I students in the group.

Survey Demographics

This section details the total number and percentage of respondents to the survey by demographic characteristics. Survey participation figures were based on participation responses to questions addressing the following characteristics: ethnicity, gender, English spoken in the home, educational level, and the number of children each respondent had attending an HISD school. Results were presented by cross-tabulating ethnicity by the remaining characteristic.

Parent Participation and Perception Comparisons

Results from the eight categories coded in Chancery were combined with relevant survey questions. The questions were grouped with the Chancery categories in collaboration with the Department of External Funding. These combinations of survey questions with the Chancery parent involvement categories provided additional insight from parents regarding the effectiveness of specific activities with each of the categories. Results were calculated by dividing the number of students coded in each parental involvement category by the number of Title I students enrolled.

Parents were asked to complete Likert scale items to score their level of agreement using the following categories: Strongly Agree, Agree, Neutral, Disagree, and Strongly Disagree. The percentages of parents selecting each category were calculated by dividing the number of parents selecting a category by the total responding to each item.

Two questions were included in each of the Parent Involvement Categories. They were: Question 10: "The school communicated with me often in a language that I could understand." And, Question 12: "The school provided opportunities for families from different backgrounds to participate in school activities." These two questions were included in each category because communication with parents and providing opportunities for them to participate can impact the extent that each of the categories support parent involvement. Questions 10 and 12 on the Parental Involvement Survey impacted each of the seven parental involvement categories, and their responses were repeated.

Data Limitations

The number of surveys received from parents represented 8.9 percent of the Title I students enrolled during the 2008–2009 school year. As a result, findings may not represent all parents.

Results

What were the demographic characteristics of students whose parents were coded in Chancery and parents who responded to the Title I Parent Involvement Survey?

From these campuses, 186,639 Title I students were enrolled in HISD. The 11,097 White Title I students had the highest percentage of parental involvement participation from Chancery data among all ethnic groups (79.7 percent). Hispanic students represented the largest ethnic group enrolled (117,721) and had the third highest parent involvement participation rate at 70.6 percent. The lowest parent participation rate coded from Chancery was 60.8 percent for African American students.

For the 2008–2009 school year, the largest ethnic group responding to the Parent Involvement Survey was Hispanic (10,284) representing 61.7 percent of the 16,668 surveys returned. Those persons who identified themselves having more than one ethnicity had the least amount of responses (114). Seventy-three percent of all respondents were women. Of the Hispanic and White respondents, women represented the highest percentage (78.5 percent) of persons responding by gender. African American respondents represented the highest percentage (88.3 percent) of households who spoke English, while Hispanic respondents had the highest percentage (70.0 percent) who indicated that English was not spoken at home. Among all survey respondents, 28.6 percent had three or more children. Of the respondents reporting, 41.1 percent of Native American respondents indicated that they had three or more children in an HISD school (see p. 21).

How did the parent involvement information in Chancery compare to the perceptions of parents expressed on the 2008–2009 Title I Parent Involvement Survey?

Overall, schools appear to be successfully communicating with parents in their home language and providing them with opportunities to participate in school activities. Districtwide, 88.4 percent of the survey participants responded that they “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 10 “The school communicated in a language that I could understand.” Similarly, although at a somewhat lower level, 80.2 percent “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” that families from different backgrounds had opportunities to participate in school activities (Question 12).

Parent Compact

Districtwide, schoolwide compacts were established with 68.0 percent of the schoolwide parents and individual compacts were established with 0.7 percent of parents at targeted assisted schools. The West region (71.2 percent) had the highest percentage of students coded whose parents received schoolwide compacts. The East (70.7 percent) and South (68.8 percent) regions also had a higher percentage of parents coded as having schoolwide compacts in Chancery than the district rate. The West region had a higher percentage of individual compacts because it also has five of the six targeted assisted campuses. Combined, in the West, schoolwide and individual compacts were established with 73.6 percent of students’ parents indicating a duplicated count of a small number of students in both categories.

Schools appeared to be diligent in establishing the compact between them and the students’ parents. Districtwide, over 80 percent of respondents “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Questions 2: “The school has provided me a copy of the parent involvement policy” (84.8 percent) and Question 3: “The school provided me a copy of the parent/school compact” (82.2 percent). When reviewing the survey feedback, both the South (88.3 percent) and West (85.7 percent) regions had percentages greater than the percent of parents districtwide who “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 2. Only the South (86.8 percent) and the East (82.2 percent) met or exceeded the districtwide percentage of 82.2 percent of parents who “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 3.

Conferences

The parent conferences category was coded for 45.4 percent of the Title I students in the district. The South (54.2 percent), East (50.4 percent) and West (48.9 percent) regions exceed the districtwide participation rate recorded in Chancery. It is generally perceived by at least 80 percent of survey respondents, with the exception of the North Region (74.0 percent), that schools provided opportunities for conferences. When reviewing perceptions by survey respondents, the Central (89.7 percent), East (87.5 percent), South (88.9 percent), and West (89.8 percent) regions exceeded the district (87.4 percent) who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 1: “The school has encouraged and provided opportunities for me to participate in school sponsored parent/teacher conferences, school curricula activities, and meetings.”

Education

When reviewing the education category, 14.7 percent of students had parents coded as participating districtwide. Across regions, the Central (13.1 percent) and North (11.9 percent) regions were below the districtwide participation rate on Chancery. At the district level, 85.1 percent “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 5: “The school has described and explained the curriculum and the academic expectations for students to me.” The East (86.1 percent), South (87.1 percent), and West (85.9 percent) regions met or exceeded the districtwide percentage rate of those survey respondents who responded,

“Strongly Agree” or “Agree”. All regions, except the North (73.9 percent) exceeded the districtwide percentage rate (85.7 percent) of those parents who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 6: “The school has described and explained the assessments used to determine student academic achievement to me.” The South (78.4 percent) and the West (74.0 percent) were the only regions to meet or exceed the districtwide percentage (74.0 percent) of those who responded “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” to Question 9: “The school provided parent training and materials that helped me help my child(ren).”

Family Literacy

Only 10.5 percent of students’ parents were coded in Chancery as participating in family literacy activities districtwide. The Alternative and Charter Schools Office (12.9 percent), South (11.3 percent) and West (16.8 percent) regions exceeded the districtwide percentage rate. Of the 16,668 respondents, 13,361 provided feedback for this category which represented a total response rate of 80.2 percent. When asked their perception of Question 8: “The school provided parent training that addresses my family needs,” 68.0 percent responded either “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” districtwide. The North (70.3 percent), and South (75.5 percent) regions had perception rates higher than the districtwide rate. Districtwide, 21.0 percent of those polled responded “Neutral” to this question.

Parent Literacy

Parent Literacy was one of the least coded categories on Chancery. Districtwide, only 7.7 percent of the students’ parents were coded as being involved in parent literacy activities. Similar to trends in previous sections, only the South (8.6 percent) and West (12.2 percent) regions exceeded the districtwide percent participating in addition to the North region (8.5 percent). Question 14 on the survey: “The school did not have any barriers that prevented me from fully participating in parent involvement activities” was rated “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” by 81.9 percent of the parents involved districtwide. Three regions exceeded the percentage responding “Strongly Agree” or “Agree”: Central (83.2 percent), North (88.6 percent), and West (83.7 percent).

Planning

Planning activities had the same participation rate coded in Chancery as Parent Literacy. The districtwide participation rate was 7.7 percent. Similar to parent literacy, the South (10.4 percent) and West (13.0 percent) regions had participation rates higher than the district. The following questions were associated with this category on the survey and the districtwide percentages of respondents reporting “Strongly Agree” and “Agree” were: Question 4: “The school has provided opportunities for me to give input in the development of the parent involvement policy and the parent/school compact” (80 percent); Question 7: “The school encouraged me to give suggestions and share my experiences” (71.5 percent); and Question 11: “The school allowed me to give input on how parent involvement can be improved at my child(ren)’s campus(es)” (74.4 percent). The South Region exceed the district percentage who “Strongly Agree” or “Agree” with Question 4 (83.4 percent), Question 7 (77.2 percent), and Question 11 (80.2 percent). The combined percentage of “Strongly Agree” and “Agree” in the North Region exceeded the district on Question 7 (71.8 percent) and Question 11 (75.4 Percent). In the West Region, the combined percentage of Question 11 (80.6 percent) was higher than the district.

Volunteering

The last category tracked in Title I parent involvement on Chancery was volunteering with 10.3 percent of all students whose parents had this item coded. The Central (11.7 percent), South (13.5 percent), and West (10.8 percent) regions exceeded the districtwide participation rate. Question 13 on the survey: “The school utilizes community resources (for example: corporate business partners, churches, and other organizations) to improve student learning,” was used to gather parent perceptions. Of those parents responding “Strongly Agree” or “Agree”, the districtwide positive perception rate was 71.8 percent. Among regions exceeding the district, the North Region was highest (85.2 percent). Other regions with higher percentages were the Central (73.2 percent), South (77.2 percent), and West (72.3 percent) regions.

Discussion

Chancery results indicated approximately two-thirds of parents with children in Title I schools have established schoolwide or individual compacts. The levels in all of the other categories were less than 50.0 percent. The lowest of these two categories were Parent Literacy and Planning activities. Only 7.7 percent of students were coded in Chancery as having parents who participated in either of these categories. The low levels in all of these areas and Parent Literacy and Planning in particular indicate that schools must devote more attention to involving their students' parents. Those low levels indicate that schools consistently are not recording these activities. High percentages of parents "Strongly Agreed" or "Agreed" that schools were successful in involving parents in school activities and communication with them in their home language. The questions eliciting the highest level of agreement were Question 1: "The school has encouraged and provided opportunities for me to participate in school sponsored parent/teacher conferences, school curricular activities, and meetings" (87.4 percent) and Question 10: "The school communicated with me often in a language that I could understand" (88.4 percent) districtwide.

Among the regions, the South and West regions appeared to have the highest levels of parent involvement. They had the highest Chancery participation rates in Schoolwide Parent Compacts and Conferences. According to the parent involvement survey in these regions, they were strongest in Question 1 and Question 10. They also had higher "Agreement" percentages than the district in six of the seven Parent Involvement categories.

Recommendations

According to the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement components, schools must provide opportunities for parents to engage in regular, two-way, and meaningful communication involving student academic learning and school activities. Schools are also required to develop strategies to increase parental involvement (U.S. Department of Education, 2009). In line with the federal law, the following recommendations are suggested.

1. Administrative regions and schools identified with low participation rates on Chancery need to stress parent involvement activities as part of campus events where parents are encouraged to attend, and the coding of participation in these activities in Chancery. These events could include open house and parent-teacher organization meetings.
2. Administrative regions and schools need to identify successful plans and activities in the South and West regions that can be replicated in other regions in the district to raise the levels of parent involvement, as these two regions had the highest response rates from parents regarding activities.
