Check with your child's school to make sure that your cell phone number is listed correctly in the School Information System. It may take a while for your number to become active after being changed or added. Be sure you have texted "yes" from your cell phone. It is also possible that neither HISD or your student's school has sent any emergency texts.

Who can text me messages? School administrators are authorized to text important messages to you. You also may hear from the HISD central office if there is a districtwide emergency such as school closures due to inclement weather.

What types of messages can I expect to receive? Text messaging from the district will be reserved for emergencies such as school closings, lockdowns and other important messages. School administrators may text you about emergencies, activities, or announcements relating to your student's school.

If I have children at more than one school, how will I know who sent the text message? The school will identify themselves in their message. Each principal can send messages only to the students at his or her school.

If I don't participate, will I miss important messages? In most cases no, because your principal will continue to send calls to your telephone, including emergency and informational messages.

Is there a charge for the texting service? You may incur text message charges from your cell phone company if you do not have unlimited texting. We encourage you to check with your service provider to make sure that texting is included in your cell phone plan before signing up. Please note that HISD does not charge for texts like a 900 number.

I don’t think this service works with my phone. I sent yes to 68453, and one of these messages came back:

- Service access denied.
- Message failed.
- Short code may have expired, or short code texting may be blocked on your account.
- Does not participate.

These replies DO NOT indicate that your mobile provider can’t receive messages from HISD. Rather, it is an indication that you do not have text messaging enabled for that number, and you will need to resolve it with your mobile provider. Additional helpful details:

- All cell phone service providers have a different response when short code messaging is blocked. The above are the most common.
- You may be able to enable text messaging by going online to your provider’s website.
- Providers use various names for texting service, including short code, SMS (short message service), or premium. If you ask about text messages, they may assume you want person to person. Therefore, when you contact your service provider, be specific about wanting to be able to send and receive “short code/SMS/premium” text messages.

- Most TV programs with a voting component – American Idol, Dancing with the Stars, etc. – use SMS messaging. If you are having trouble describing the type of service you want, tell your provider that’s the same thing you want to add to your cell phone.
- Some plans may not allow for “short code/SMS/premium” messaging but most frequently, it is disabled due to the account holder’s preference and can be changed rather than getting a new cell phone service package.

Special note for T-Mobile customers: If you texted YES to 68453 and received a “Service Denied” or similar message in response, your text messaging capabilities may be blocked. Call T-Mobile and ask them to remove the block on text messages, which are also known as short message codes. Once your account is unblocked, you should be able to sign up for and receive text alerts from HISD.

Special note for Republic Wireless customers: There have been some problems in the past with texting if you have Republic Wireless. Please contact them for details if you have any problems.
