Greetings,

I am honored to provide library service and technical support to the prestigious James Madison High School

As your Library Media Specialist, I will provide curriculum and technical support that will enhance student achievement, provide inspiration and creative development that will foster a solid foundation for careers aligned with fine art.

I have earned a Bachelor of Science in Library of Science from Prairie View A& M University, and a Master of Information Science from the University of Houston Clear Lake. I am a certified School Library Specialist.

I have been employed as a librarian for the City of Houston and Harris County. I am presently the Library Media Specialist at James Madison High School.

I am an avid reader, innovator, and creative self-starter. My most admirable personality trait is my ability to work exceptionally well with students, parents, teachers, administrators, the community, and all stakeholders of the educational environment.

I am also gifted with exceptional creativity in library design and other areas as it pertains to library and school life.

Over my thirty-six years as a librarian, I have gained valuable experience in technology. I have recently earned thirty hours in virtual learning, technology applications and practices.

My goal is to enhance student achievement and my motto is readers are leaders.

Sincerely,

Rose Young, MLIS

“Even if you have a space that’s called a library, if you don’t have a person qualified to run that space, you probably have a storeroom.” Ann C. Weeks, former director of Libraries in Chicago Public Schools.
