Attached is a copy of the Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Report for 2012–2013. This report describes the level of parental involvement in Title I schools as reported by schools through Chancery and by families through the Your Voice Survey. Household demographic data are also included, and the data are aggregated by school, school office, and district.

Some of the highlights are as follows:

- Hispanic students (123,196) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide and had a 79.9 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery. African American students had the lowest rate at 71.7 percent, and overall, the district had a 78.5 percent parent involvement participation rate recorded in Chancery.

- The 2012–2013 Your Voice Survey was completed by 18,338 parents of Title I students reflecting 10 percent of all Title I students enrolled.

- According to Chancery, 85.6 percent of parents were identified as having received a copy of the individual/school compact. Among other parent participation categories in Chancery, the category with the highest participation rate was Conference with 47.1 percent and the category with the lowest participation rate was Parent Literacy with 9.0 percent.

- Schools from the Elementary Schools Offices (combined) had the highest parental involvement rates as recorded in Chancery, most notably in the Conference category (58.3 percent). Middle schools showed the lowest parental involvement in Conference (25.7 percent), Parent Literacy (6.4 percent), Planning (2.7 percent) and Volunteering (1.4 percent) while high schools showed the lowest parental involvement in Individual/School Compact (82.9 percent), Education/Training (14.8 percent), and Family Literacy (5.0 percent).

- The question related to parent involvement from the Your Voice Survey with the highest agreement rate was “My child’s school gives opportunities for and encourages me to participate in parent/teacher conferences, school activities, and meetings” with 89.3 percent. The question with the lowest agreement rate was “My child’s school gives me the training and materials to help me to help my child” with 72.7 percent.

- Schools from the Elementary Schools Offices (combined) showed the highest agreement rate from parents across all parental involvement survey questions, and middle schools showed the lowest agreement rate.

TITLE I, PART A PARENT INVOLVEMENT
2012–2013

Executive Summary

Program Description

The Title I, Part A program developed out of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) from 1965 and the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) from 2001. The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and achieve, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and assessments. The program’s goal is accomplished by providing supplemental funding for educational programs to Title I, Part A schools, which have a high percentage of students living in poverty.

Title I, Part A also includes provisions to engage parents in the education process, which helps schools and parents share accountability for high student achievement. The provisions include expanded public school choice, a broader range of supplemental educational services, local development of parental involvement plans, and building parents’ capacity for using effective practices to improve their children’s academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program gives parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

For the purpose of identifying how parents were involved in the decisions that impact their children’s academic success, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, school wide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2012–2013 Title I coding procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these categories (Department of External Funding, 2012).

Purpose of the Evaluation Report

The purpose of this report was to assess the level of parental involvement coded in Chancery by school staff and according to the feedback gathered on the 2012–2013 Your Voice Survey. Household demographic data were noted where available, and data were aggregated by school, school office, and district.

Highlights

- Hispanic students (123,196) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide and had a 79.9 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery. African American students had the lowest rate at 71.7 percent, and overall, the district had a 78.5 percent parent involvement participation rate recorded in Chancery.

- The following schools had parent participation rates below 5 percent as recorded in Chancery and are listed in order of the lowest participation rate to the highest: Young Scholars Academy for Excellence, James Berry Elementary School, John Richardson Harris Elementary School, Liberty High School, Eugene Field Elementary School, Kandy Stripe Academy, Thomas Rusk School, Sharpstown High School, Julius Dodson Elementary School, Roderick Paige Elementary School, TSU Charter Lab School, Highland Heights Elementary School, Kashmere High School, Henry Peterson Elementary School, Pro-Vision School, Walter Fondren Middle School, and Sugar Grove Middle School.

- The 2012–2013 Your Voice Survey was completed by 18,338 parents of Title I students reflecting 10 percent of all Title I students enrolled.
George Sanchez Elementary School had the highest Your Voice Survey completion rate among parents (44.7 percent) while the following schools had a 0 percent survey completion rate from parents: Energized for STEM High School Southeast, Energized for STEM High School Southwest, Frances Harper Alternative School, Victor Hartsfield Elementary School, Hope Academy Charter School, Inspired for Excellence Academy West, TSU Charter Lab School, and Vision Academy, reflecting mostly charter and alternative schools.

According to Chancery, 85.6 percent of parents were identified as having received a copy of the individual/school compact. Among other parent participation categories in Chancery, the category with the highest participation rate was Conference with 47.1 percent and the category with the lowest participation rate was Parent Literacy with 9.0 percent.

Schools from the Elementary Schools Offices (combined) had the highest parental involvement rates as recorded in Chancery, most notably in the Conference category (58.3 percent). Middle schools showed the lowest parental involvement in Conference (25.7 percent), Parent Literacy (6.4 percent), Planning (2.7 percent) and Volunteering (1.4 percent) while high schools showed the lowest parental involvement in Individual/School Compact (82.9 percent), Education/Training (14.8 percent), and Family Literacy (5.0 percent).

The question related to parent involvement from the Your Voice Survey with the highest agreement rate was “My child’s school gives opportunities for and encourages me to participate in parent/teacher conferences, school activities, and meetings” with 89.3 percent. The question with the lowest agreement rate was “My child’s school gives me the training and materials to help me to help my child” with 72.7 percent.

Schools from the Elementary Schools Offices (combined) showed the highest agreement rate from parents across all parental involvement survey questions, and middle schools showed the lowest agreement rate.

Recommendations
1. The data coded in Chancery showed low parental involvement (9–18 percent) in the areas of Education/Training, Parent and Family Literacy, Planning, and Volunteering, and the reasons for the low rates of involvement should be investigated. The activities are potentially not accessible to parents, and solutions should be found based on the reasons behind the low rates of involvement.
2. Schools should also consider providing parents with more training and materials to help them help their children since that was the question from the survey with the lowest agreement rate.
3. Schools with lower parental involvement rates should consider adopting training activities and communication methods used by schools with higher parental involvement rates.

Administrative Response
The purpose of Title I, Part A Program is to ensure that all children, particularly low achieving children in the highest-poverty schools, have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and reach, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging State academic achievement standards and State academic assessments.

Researchers have evidence on the positive effects of parent involvement on students when schools and parents continuously support and encourage their children's learning and development.
Based on the 2012–2013 Title I, Part A Parent Involvement Report, Education/Training, Parent and Family Literacy, Planning, and Volunteering showed below twenty percent of parents being actively involved in these areas. The Department of External Funding will address the low percentage by working with the Family and Community Engagement Department on providing additional support and resources to increase parent involvement on Title I campuses.

It is widely recognized that if pupils are to maximize their potential from schooling they will need the full support of their parents. Title I Campuses will continue to receive guidance on best practices on how to engage parents in their child’s education.
Introduction

The Title I, Part A program developed out of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) from 1965 and the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) from 2001. The Title I, Part A program is designed to ensure that all children have a fair, equal, and significant opportunity to obtain a high-quality education and achieve, at a minimum, proficiency on challenging state academic achievement standards and assessments. The program's goal is accomplished by providing supplemental funding for educational programs to Title I, Part A schools, which have a high percentage of students living in poverty.

Title I, Part A school programs are implemented on either a schoolwide or targeted assistance basis. A schoolwide program permits a school with 40 percent or greater of its students at the poverty level to use funds from Title I, Part A and other federal education program funds and resources to improve the educational program of the entire school in order to raise academic achievement for all students. This contrasts with the targeted assistance program, through which Title I, Part A funds are used only to provide supplementary educational services for eligible students who are economically disadvantaged.

Title I, Part A also includes provisions to engage parents in the education process, which helps schools and parents share accountability for high student achievement. The provisions include expanded public school choice, a broader range of supplemental educational services, local development of parental involvement plans, and building parents' capacity for using effective practices to improve their children's academic achievement (U.S. Department of Education, 2004). The program gives parents the opportunity to be informed at all levels of implementation.

For the purpose of identifying how parents were involved in the decisions that impact their children's academic success, the district identified the following eight areas by which parent involvement would be classified: individual compact, schoolwide compact, conference, education/training, family literacy, parent literacy, planning, and volunteering. The 2012–2013 Title I Coding Procedures for Chancery provides a description of each of these categories (Department of External Funding, 2012):

- Individual Compact – A contract that lists the responsibilities of parents, staff, and students from Title I Targeted Assistance Schools to improve student achievement.
- Schoolwide Compact – A contract that lists the responsibilities of parents, staff, and students from Title I Schoolwide Schools to improve student achievement.
- Conference – A one-on-one meeting between the parent and classroom teacher at a minimum; may include others such as the assistant principal, counselor, or another stakeholder.
- Education/Training – Classes or topics covering parenting skills and ways that parents can assist their child(ren) to become successful mastering the state’s challenging academic standards and assessments.
- Family Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent (or other family member) and child(ren) become literate in reading and computer skills.
- Parent Literacy – Sustained classes and continuing education that help the parent become literate in reading, computer skills, and/or job skills.
- Planning – An opportunity for parents to meet and plan activities that will increase parental involvement at the local campus, as well as an opportunity for parents to give input about how Title I, Part A funds are used at the local campus.
- Volunteering – Parents at the local campus participating in activities that help foster an environment conducive for learning.
Since all Title I schools in HISD were considered schoolwide in 2012–2013 all parent compact coding should have been under the Schoolwide Compact category in Chancery, but the data were mis-coded under Individual Compact in a few instances. In this report, data coded for Individual Compact and Schoolwide Compact have been combined.

Supporting Research

Many studies have shown that parental involvement correlates positively with student achievement (Fan and Chen, 2001; Shaver and Walls, 1998; Sui-Chu and Willms, 1996, Fehrmann, Keith, and Reimers, 1987). Student achievement can be operationally defined as several indicators including GPA, standardized test scores, and post-secondary success. Parental involvement is also a broad term and can refer to activities ranging from reading with students at home to collaborating with the community in order to improve educational opportunities for students. Epstein (1987) identified six major types of parental involvement that are widely accepted: parenting, communicating, volunteering, learning at home, decision-making, and community collaboration. The eight areas of parent involvement coded in Chancery by the district closely mirror Epstein’s categories. The variation among these areas demonstrates that there are many ways for parents to be involved and make a positive impact on their children’s achievement.

Studies have also shown that parental involvement correlates positively with student achievement regardless of ethnicity or socioeconomic status (Jeynes, 2007). However, some studies show that socioeconomic status and parental involvement are positively related (Balli, 1996; Bracey, 1996). In other words, parental involvement is usually low in families of low socioeconomic status and parental involvement is usually high in families of high socioeconomic status. This makes the Title I, Part A parental involvement provisions all the more important. If parents of students in Title I schools are encouraged and held accountable to engage in their children’s learning, student achievement should increase.

Methods

Data Collection

There were 253 Title I, Part A campuses in the Houston Independent School District (HISD) during the 2012–2013 school year. All campuses were designated as schoolwide.

Data were obtained from a variety of sources. Student demographics by ethnicity and Title I status were taken from the 2012–2013 PEIMS Fall Collection (Resubmission), which is maintained by the Texas Education Agency. Parental involvement data in the eight participation categories were obtained from the Chancery Student Information System and were recorded by school staff. The percentage of parental involvement was calculated by dividing the number of coded students by the number of students enrolled. In previous years, parental perception data were gathered from a parental involvement survey put together by the Department of External Funding. However, in 2012–2013, a districtwide survey called Your Voice was conducted by RDA group, a global market research and consulting firm, for HISD. Surveys were distributed to all parents in the district, and parents were asked to return the completed surveys to the schools or to complete them online. Seven questions on the survey were related to parental involvement, and parents were asked if they agreed or disagreed with each question (Table 1, page 5). Surveys were provided in three languages: English, Spanish, and Vietnamese.

Data Limitations

The number of surveys received from parents represented only 10 percent of the total number of Title I students enrolled during the 2012–2013 school year.

Results

- Hispanic students (123,196) represented the largest Title I student group districtwide and had a 79.9 percent parent involvement participation rate in Chancery. African American students had the lowest rate at 71.7 percent, and overall, the district had a 78.5 percent parent involvement participation rate recorded in Chancery.

- According to Chancery, 85.6 percent of parents were identified as having received a copy of the individual/school compact, which increased from 2012. Among other parent participation categories in Chancery, the category with the highest participation rate was Conference with 47.1 percent and the category with the lowest participation rate was Parent Literacy with 9.0 percent. Besides individual/school compact, the percentage of parents involved in other categories decreased from 2012 (Figure 1).

Discussion

The Title I, Part A program is designed to help students living in poverty obtain a high quality education and achieve proficiency on state standards and assessments by providing additional funding to their schools. The program calls for parents to be involved in their children’s education process, and as a way of holding schools, parents, and children accountable, HISD developed a Parent Compact. In Chancery, schools can code if parents have received a copy of this parent compact under two categories: Individual Compact for Title I targeted assistance schools and School Compact for Title I schoolwide schools. Since all Title I schools in HISD were considered schoolwide in 2012–2013 all parent compact coding should have been under the School Compact category in Chancery, but the data were mis-coded under Individual Compact in a few instances. In this report, data coded for Individual Compact and School Compact have been combined. For the 2012–2013 school year, school staff recorded in Chancery that 85.6 percent of parents in the district received a copy of the parent compact, which is an increase from 2011–2012. According to the parents who completed the Your Voice Survey, 87.9 percent of them agreed that their school provided them with a copy of the parent involvement policies and the parent compact (Q6). This shows consistency between Chancery and the survey in this area.

While the percentage of parents who received a copy of the individual/school compact increased from 2012 to 2013, the percentage of parents involved in other ways decreased as coded in Chancery. Based on this data, schools may want to consider new ways to engage parents or more accurately record participation in Chancery. Overall, Parent Literacy had the lowest parental involvement rate (9.0 percent), followed by Planning (10.2 percent) and Volunteering (10.3). Parents of middle school students had the lowest participation rate in these categories.
According to parents who completed the Your Voice Survey, the survey question with the highest agreement rate was "My child’s school gives opportunities for and encourages me to participate in parent/teacher conferences, school activities, and meetings" at 89.3 percent. The question with the lowest agreement rate was "My child’s school gives me training and materials to help me to help my child" at 72.7 percent. Based on these results, schools should consider providing parents with more training and materials so that they are better equipped to help their children. Parents of elementary school students had the highest agreement rates and parents of middle school students had the lowest agreement rates across all parental involvement survey questions.
